Company Profile

A. Schulman delivers value by applying its distinctive technical and manufacturing expertise to optimize the performance, appearance and processability of plastic resins to meet the most demanding application requirements. Through our understanding of plastics and our strong technology and experience with all resin additives and modifiers, we are able to provide precise customization, as well as to maximize quality and production yields. This strong technology expertise is the common bond that drives the value A. Schulman provides customers in its three key core markets – masterbatch, rotomolding and engineered plastics – and generates long-term value growth for its shareholders. In addition, the Company utilizes its distribution services to support these three businesses through optimal purchasing power of bulk commodity resins. ... (more)
